

Navigator

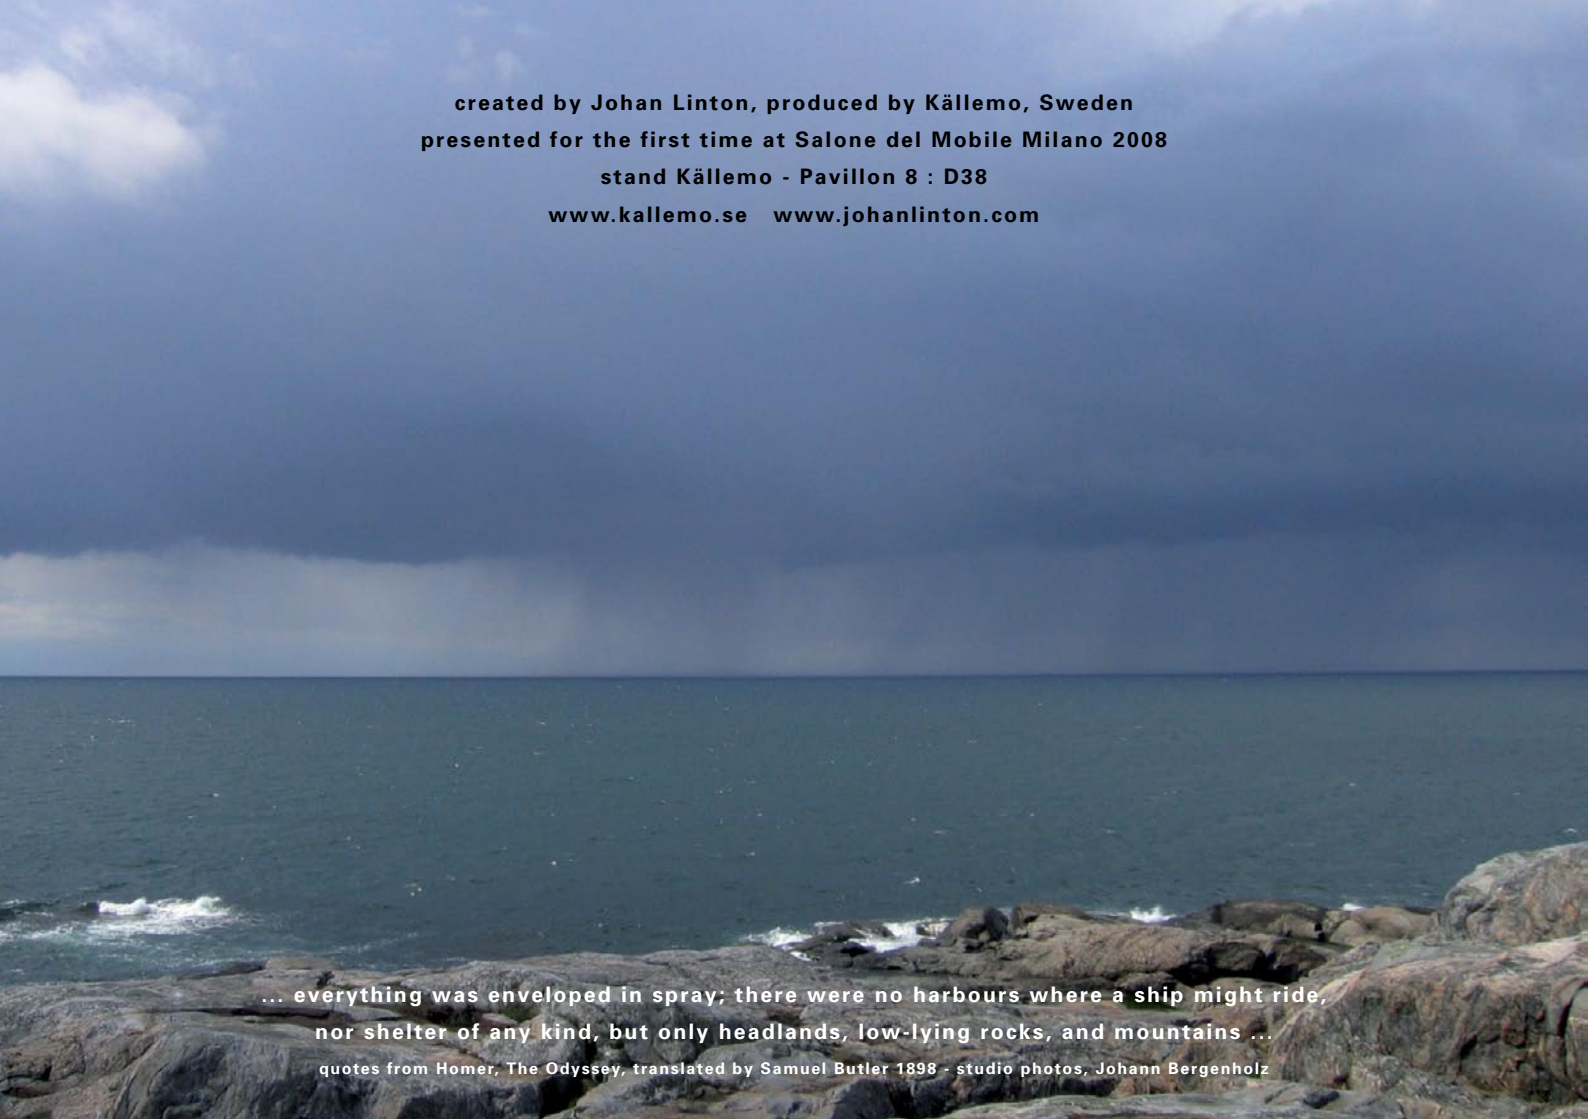

... nine days and nine nights did we sail, and on the tenth day our native land showed on the horizon ...

... the ship sped on her way through the watches of the night from dark till dawn ...

... borne along by the waves all night ...

A dramatic seascape with a dark, stormy sky and a rocky coastline. The sky is filled with heavy, dark clouds, and the sea is a deep, dark blue-grey. In the foreground, there are large, dark, jagged rocks. The overall mood is somber and atmospheric.

created by Johan Linton, produced by Källemo, Sweden presented for the first time at Salone del Mobile Milano 2008 stand Källemo - Pavillon 8 : D38
www.kallemo.se www.johanlinton.com

... everything was enveloped in spray; there were no harbours where a ship might ride, nor shelter of any kind, but only headlands, low-lying rocks, and mountains ...

quotes from Homer, The Odyssey, translated by Samuel Butler 1898 - studio photos, Johann Bergenholz